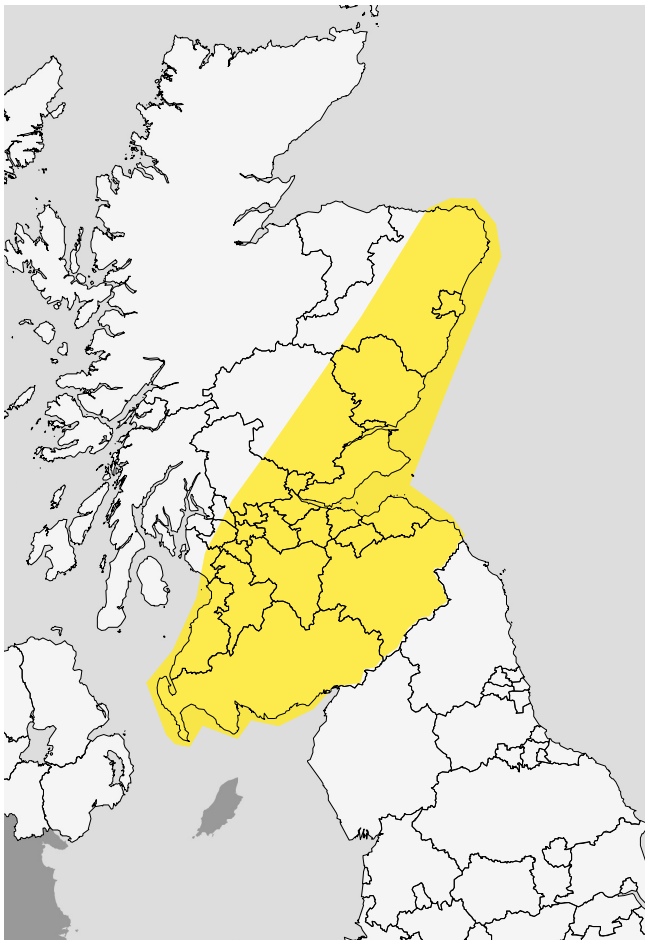
Yellow warning
Rain

Between
01:00 Tue 9 Apr 2024 and
18:00 Tue 9 Apr 2024



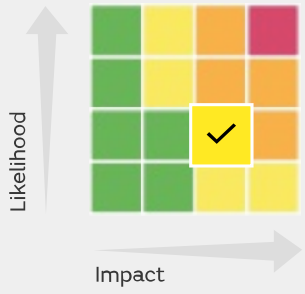
Rainfall on Monday night and Tuesday could cause some transport disruption, together with possible damage to homes and businesses.

What to expect

- Spray and flooding could lead to difficult driving conditions and some road closures, together with possible delays or cancellations to train and bus services - most likely in the south of the warning area
- Homes and businesses could be flooded, causing damage to some buildings, this more likely in southern Scotland and the south of the Central Lowlands
- Fast-flowing or deep floodwater is possible, with one or two communities temporarily cut off by flooded roads
- There is a slight chance of power cuts and loss of other services to some homes and businesses

Further details

Rain will become heavier across parts of Scotland overnight Monday into Tuesday before clearing away into the North Sea on Tuesday afternoon or evening. The rain could be heavy and persistent in places, with some areas seeing 20-40 mm of rain, and a chance that one or two spots could see 50-60 mm; these higher totals now seem more likely in the south of the warning area, roughly to the south of a line Glasgow to Edinburgh. Given saturated ground in many locations, such rainfall totals may cause greater impacts than they typically would.



Low likelihood of medium impacts

What should I do?

Check if your property could be at risk of flooding. If so, consider preparing a flood plan and an emergency flood kit.

Give yourself the best chance of avoiding delays by checking road conditions if driving, or bus and train timetables, amending your travel plans if necessary.

People cope better with power cuts when they have prepared for them in advance. It's easy to do; consider gathering torches and batteries, a mobile phone power pack and other essential items.

Be prepared for weather warnings to change; the Met Office recommends staying up to date with the weather forecast in your area.

Reason for update

The likelihood of flooding impacts is assessed to have increased across southern parts of the warning area.
